And that such people should tamely submit to have the atmosphere which they are to become disgusting, and so full of poisnous and unwholesome exhalations as in the opinion of their best medicals men to be flanting and the which they are compelled to perform their daily shlutions, to be made so vilic to taste and many and the strength of the continuous extremely offinanter; that this, and among a people like ours, seems to me anarvel almost beyond belief or explanation.

Fure air and pure water are sentiary conditions universally concerded to be essential to the health as well as the confert of every city.

There has been scarely a day this fall or winter when the atmosphere of this city has not been charged with disagreeable edors, or when the water of this city has not been offensive to the smell, and yet we go on our way as if this extraordinary and disagreeable of the conditions of this way for next impact connections.

Truly we must confess "our diffense is rink, it amelia to Heaven." We have reason to he ashamed of our lever that we have tolerated such a state of things so long; and from henceforth every man who has any prize as attizen of our saidful city, or any just regard for the welfare, or for the comfort and health of its people should make it his special bust ness to do his part toward effecting a change.

Let us determine once and for all that this said of things shall not continue; that cost what it will, affect what interest or class of money makers it may, the river which runs through our city shall be clear and sweet; the water which we drink and in which we both, shall be pure and wholesome, and the air we breathe shall not be corrupted by naxious and offensive exhalations.

Those of our citizens who were living in Chicago when the existing Sewerage Law was enacted, will remember that by the terms of that law, no sewerage could be commenced in any part of the city until a pian of sewerage adapted to the needs of the whole city had been first planned and adopted, and so studiously careful was that is we to insure a plan which should be free from all radical defects, that the Board of Sewerage Commissioners were, after making such plan to be authorized to file objections to it during that period, and the Board were also the subtility in the Common Council whose duty it was to appoint a committee to examine and report upon it.

Now the chief objection which was entertained at that time to the emptying the stream and making it mostons and disagreeable. And if you turn to like original Sewerage Plan, &s first published for the ap-
